

Blue and Purple Flowers
Red and Pink flowers

©Lourdes Photography/iStock

Bluebell
Hyacinthoides non-scripta
Sweetly scented flowers hang on one side of an arching stem. Petals form a narrow tube and curl backwards at their tips. Leaves are narrow.

©Milosz_G/iStock

Bugle
Ajuga reptans
Patch-forming plant with leafy flower spikes reaching 10-30cm carrying blue flowers in tiers. Stems are square with leaves in pairs.

©Trevor Dines/Plantlife

Common dog-violet
Viola riviniana
Unscented blue flowers with two upper petals and three lower petals with darker veins and a paler small tube behind each flower. Leaves are heart-shaped.

©Stefan Rotter/iStock

Common field-speedwell
Veronica persica
A low, spreading plant. Small bright blue flowers with four petals, the lowest of which is white. Each one is carried on a single stem that's longer than the leaves.

©Andrew Gagg/Plantlife

Green alkanet
Pentaglottis sempervirens
A large, clump-forming plant growing up to 1m tall. Large oval leaves are rough to touch. Blue forget-me-not type flowers are carried in branching sprays.

©Seven75/iStock

Ground-ivy
Glechoma hederacea
Creeping plant. Violet blue flowers with a lower lip of three petals form tiers on small upright stems. Leaves are rounded and wavy-edged with a strong smell.

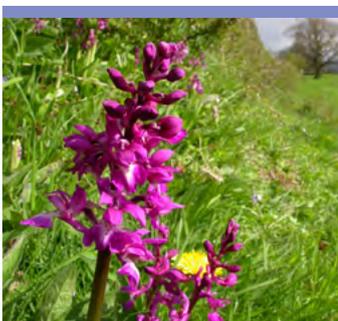

©Seven75/iStock

Germander speedwell
Veronica chamaedrys
Low, spreading plant with bright blue four-petalled flowers with a white centre. These are carried in small spikes arising from the main stem.

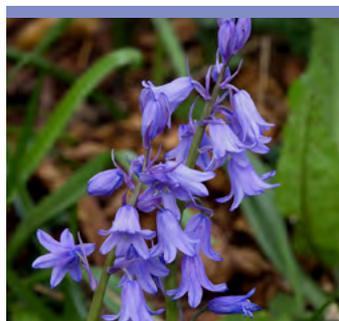

©Andrew Gagg/Plantlife

Ivy-leaved toadflax
Cymbalaria muralis
This creeping, tumbling plant has reddish stems and small ivy-shaped leaves. Small lilac and white flowers have two yellow 'keels' in the centre.

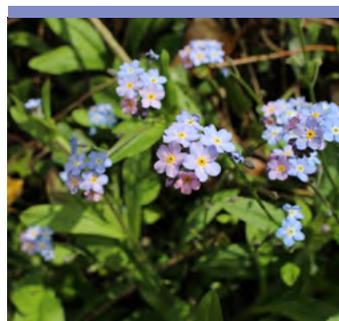

©Dan Wrench/iStock

Early-purple orchid
Orchis mascula
Scented purple-pink flowers have a lower lip with paler patch with a few dots and are carried in a spike above glossy green leaves dotted with purple blotches.

©suerobi/iStock

Spanish bluebell
Hyacinthoides hispanica
Bell-shaped pale blue flowers of Spanish bluebell lack a sweet scent without reflexed petal tips held all around an upright flower stem. Leaves are broad.

©Yvonne Immie/Plantlife

Wood forget-me-not
Myosotis sylvatica
Medium-sized plant often found in patches. Familiar forget-me-not flowers, carried in branching sprays, are flat and pale blue with a white and yellow 'eye'.

©Andrew Gagg/Plantlife

Cuckooflower
Cardamine pratensis
Usually found in clumps on damp verges, fields and meadows. The four-petalled flowers are lilac-pink to white and carried in clusters on stems to 60cm tall.

Red and Pink flowers
 Yellow flowers
 White flowers

©Andrew Gagg/Plantlife

Herb Robert
Geranium robertianum

Small plant with deeply-lobed hairy leaves, triangular outline, that are sometimes reddish and produce a strong, unpleasant smell with bright pink, five-petalled flowers.

©Lukeluke8/Stock

Red deadnettle
Lamium purpureum

Patch-forming plant with hairy, heart-shaped leaves often shaded purple towards the top of the plant. Small hooded purple flowers emerge between the upper leaves.

©Trevor Dines/Plantlife

Colt's-foot
Tussilago farfara

Colt's-foot flowers look a bit like small dandelions. Stems are scaly. The leaves appear later and are rounded with whitish felt underneath.

©Plantlife

Cowslip
Primula veris

Clusters of small cup-shaped yellow flowers on stems up to 30cm tall. At the base of each plant is a rosette of wrinkly leaves.

©Trevor Dines/Plantlife

Dandelion
Taraxacum officinalis

Cheerful, bright yellow flowers on individual hollow stems above a rosette of jaggedly toothed leaves. These are followed by fluffy white seed heads.

©emer1940/Stock

Lesser celandine
Ranunculus ficaria

This small plant flowers in early spring with large star-shaped flowers of 8-12 highly glossy petals and a paler centre. The leaves are shiny and heart-shaped.

©Trevor Dines/Plantlife

Primrose
Primula vulgaris

Pale yellow, five-petalled flowers up to 3cm across, each borne on its own long stem. Leaves are tongue-shaped, wrinkly and up to 15cm long.

©dmf87/Stock

Anemone
Anemone nemorosa

Large, star-like white flowers of six (or more) petals that open wide in the sun. Found in patches in ancient woodland, hedgerows and on road verges.

©Trevor Dines/Plantlife

Daisy
Bellis perennis

Small white flowers with yellow centres. Petals are often flushed pink on the outside. Small rounded leaves grow in a rosette. Often very abundant in lawns.

©suerob /Stock

Greater stitchwort
Stellaria holostea

A spreading, scrambling plant with large white flowers of five petals that are divided halfway. Narrow rough-edged leaves are arranged in pairs on a square stem.

©Ramsons/Stock

Ramsons
Allium ursinum

This spreading plant has large, bright green leaves that smell strongly of garlic. Rounded clusters of white, six-petalled flowers are carried on tall stalks.

©Argen Lant/Stock

White deadnettle
Lamium album

Clump-forming plant with upright stems carrying nettle-like leaves without the sting! Large, hooded white flowers are carried in tiers between the upper leaves.